Fun With The KIDS!

Alice our in house salon operator and #1 stylist brought by a couple of her kids to visit the residents. These 2 are bottle babies. The little girl was born about a month early and could not even stand on her own for the first 3 or 4 days. But Alice, being the best adoptive goat mom around, took her into the house and bottle fed her. The first week or so was nerve racking. Alice didn't know if the baby would survive or not. But she did survive and began to thrive. Then another of the moms gave birth. She was a first time mom and left her baby and would not feed it. So the baby girl got a brother. Alice kept them in a pen in the game room for about a month before moving them outside to the goat pen. They are a little over two months and are still getting 2 bottles a day. They are happy little myotonic (fainting) goats. Meet Birdie and Bandit.

May Birthdays

In astrology, those born May 1—20 are Bulls of Taurus. Like bulls in a pasture, Taureans enjoy relaxing in serene environments. They also work hard and expect a reward for their efforts. Those born from May 21—31 are Twins of Gemini. Perhaps because twins are born with a companion, Geminis love to communicate with others. They are flexible and clever extroverts who can make persuasive arguments.

Easter Roll-By

Our Easter drive by was a hit again this year. We enjoyed handing out eggs to all the little children that came by. And at the end of the trail there was a special treat. Each child got Bag filled with a hot dog, cookies and a juice box. All along the trail they received eggs filled with candy from friends and family of Trinity Shores. Everyone enjoyed visiting with the Easter Bunny.

Arts and Crafts

In April we made Easter Baskets by weaving paper,

We painted Trucks,

And we made sun catchers.

Easter Party

Our Easter party was lots of fun. First our residents had cupcakes, cookies and punch while staff hid eggs all over the building.

Time to Hunt Eggs

The hunt was on. They were going all over the building looking for the eggs. They started down the back hall and circled around to end up back in the dining room. It was time to count the eggs. The person with the most eggs would win a prize.

Mrs. Evins won the big egg. She found 39 eggs. Her prize was filled with all kind of stuff from a luffa on a stick to candy kisses.

Table Cloths and No Tunes

This month's Table Cloths and Tunes had a couple of hitches. First there were no tunes. I tried to get several different people to sing but all were busy. But all was not bad. The food was some of the best since we started Table Cloths and Tunes. Everyone I asked said it was delicious. We started the evening with Wine (sparkling cider) and Beer (with or without alcohol). For an appetizer we had pinwheels stuffed with ham, cheese, cream cheese and other yummy stuff. The main course was loaded baked potatoes, baked beans, corn and green beans. To top it off we had a delightful Jell-O and cream cheese cup. It was all yummy.

Punny Business

The O. Henry Museum in Austin, Texas, holds one of the punniest events of the year on May 22. The O. Henry Pun-Off gathers 32 of the country's mightiest "punslingers" and challenges them to a competition sure to elicit plenty of good-hearted groans. The Pun-Off showcases two main events. The first is "Punniest of Show," where contestants deliver a 90-second pun-filled monologue that judges rate on a scale of 1-10. The showstopper comes in the afternoon with a no-holds-barred, one-on-one competition in which punslingers must barrage each other with puns. The slightest tongue-tied slip-up or strike (a failed pun attempt) leaves a punslinger disqualified.

Would O. Henry be proud of such a competition held in his name? O. Henry, born William Sydney Porter, was a prolific short story writer at the turn of the 20th century. He was known for his wit, humor, and love of language, and his stories often ended with a surprise twist. The fact that O. Henry has inspired such a competition might be the biggest twist ending of all.

The Sky Is Falling!

In May of 2009, NASA identified an asteroid known as JF1. Much has been made of JF1, especially the news that it will hit Earth on May 6. Some people are claiming that the asteroid is the size of an Egyptian pyramid, and, on impact, it will destroy mankind. Luckily, these are crazy exaggerations. NASA's Center for Near-Earth Object Studies is tasked with monitoring any cosmic debris that could impact Earth. It estimates that JF1 has a 1-in-3,984 chance of hitting the planet (or a 99.974% chance it will miss). Moreover, the size of JF1 is just 13 to 20 meters in diameter, hardly a threat to human civilization. It could, however, burn up in the atmosphere and explode in a massive ball of fire, releasing the equivalent of 400 kilotons of TNT, a blast large enough for people on Earth to notice.
